

Christophe Chaudet started his career as a print journalist in the French-speaking part of Switzerland. He joined Télévision suisse romande (TSR) in 1992 as a news journalist (Téléjournal) and later moved to the tv programmes «Temps Présent» and «Tell Quel». Between 1996 and 2000, he was appointed parliamentary correspondent in Bern and then head of the Swiss section of the «Téléjournal». From 2001 to 2008, he joined the editorial board of the latter and between 2009 and 2016 became deputy director of the programmes section within Radio Télévision Suisse (RTS). Today he directs the news and sports section (Actualité & Sports).