

Jean-Paul Philippot graduated from the Solvay Brussels School of Economics and Management. He entered the broadcasting world in 2002, after serving as managing director of the Brussels public hospitals (IRIS). As administrator-general of RTBF, he launched three reorganisation plans in 2002, 2007 and 2012. He's presently implementing a pluriannual strategic plan, called «Vision 2022», in order to adapt the structure and operation of the company to the new media consumer habits. He was also president of the European Broadcasting Union (EBU) from 2009 to 2018.
