

Dr. Karen Donders is professor of media policy and European media markets at the economics and social sciences faculty of the Vrije Universiteit Brussel. She is senior researcher of the research group imec-SMIT (Studies in Media, Innovation and Technology, part of imec) where she heads the MEDIA research unit studying diverse policy, business and user aspects of networked and data-driven societies. The unit consists of 40 junior and senior researchers working on Flemish, Belgian and European research projects. These are fundamental or applied.

Dr. Donders specializes in European media policy, competition policy and its impact on media sectors, public service media, valorisation of media content, and the interplay between media policy and economics. She has published widely on these issues in international peer-reviewed journals such as European Journal of Communication, Media Culture & Society, Journal of Media Law, Convergence, Javnost, etc. She is the author of Public service media and policy in Europe (2012, Palgrave) and co-author of Platform power and policy in transforming television markets (with Tom Evens, 2012, Palgrave). She is the editor of several books, including Handbook of European Media Policy (2014) and Private television in Western Europe (2013).

Dr. Donders is regularly consulted by media companies, European regulators and national and European governmental institutions. She has recently been invited as a research fellow of the prestigious European think tank CERRE (Centre for European Regulation). She is a founding member of the Brussels Center for Competition Policy Research (BCCP). She supervises multiple European and Flemish research projects and is the scientific coordinator of the European Expert Network on Culture and Audiovisual Policies (EENCA).
